Spark From Chimney Sets Fire to Kohl Home

As the result of a spark from the chimney falling on the dry shingles, the home of John B. Kohl, two miles northeast of Mokena, was nearly destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon. About three o'clock Mrs. Kohl noticed a heavy smoke in the yard, and called Mr. Kohl's attention to it. When the latter went out in the yard, he noticed that the roof was on fire. Grabbing an axe, he broke thru the attic and began to fight the blaze until help from surrounding farms and from Mokena arrived.

There are two little boys in the family, one of whom, the youngest, was ill in bed at the time. The older boy ran to the Fred Knudson farm and told Mr. Knudson that their home was afire, and the latter telephoned to the neighbors and got a big crowd together. As there was no hose on the Kohl place, a bucket brigade had to be formed. Every available milk can, pot, pan and kettle was pressed into service for carrying water, and after a hard fight the blaze was put out, but not until the whole roof had been burned off. The loss is about $1,000, covered by insurance. When the fire first broke out the wind was carrying the flames toward the barn, but suddenly it shifted and blew them in the opposite direction.

The little boy who was ill in bed was bundled up and taken in an auto to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Spiess, in Mokena.

Burglar Given Away by Flashlight

Burglars made their appearance in Mokena early Friday morning, but were frightened away before they could obtain any loot. About two o'clock that morning one who lives in the Sutter building, was awakened by the barking of his dog. Glancing toward the vacant store room adjoining his apartments, he saw a man with a flashlight moving about in the room. He quickly got out of bed and went to the store room. Soon as he entered, the burglar jumped out of a window, thru which he had gained entrance by prying it open. Nothing was taken.

Farmers' Protective Association Grows

At a meeting held in the Plainfield Community House, Friday, January 19th, thirty live-wire farmers got together and voted to extend the Will County Farmers' Protective Association thruout Plainfield township. Losses have been sustained by several of the farmers in this community, one man losing a cow from the effects of a gunshot received from hunters. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Will County Farm Bureau.

Mr. James Patterson, secretary of the Will County Farmers' Protective Association, was present, and told how the protective association was advancing in Wheatland township. At this meeting twenty-three farmers joined the protective association, with a determination to go out and secure their neighbors as members to assist in carrying on the work of the protective association.

A motion was passed that Mr. William Anderson, chairman of Plainfield township for the Will County Farm Bureau, make arrangements to see that every man in Plainfield township has an opportunity to join the Farmers' Protective Association. If the men who want to join this organization would go to Mr. Anderson or some of the other men who will be appointed to assist in the drive, it would save these men a great deal of work. Many other men would have attended this meeting if it would have been possible. These men phoned in that they were ready to back up the association.

Walter Yunker Weds Pretty Lemont Girl

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in the Christ Lutheran church, Orland, when Miss Anna S. Lange, daughter of Mrs. M. Lange of Lemont, Ill., became the bride of Mr. Walter Yunker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Yunker of Orland. Rev. Greve reading the marriage ceremony. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of a beautiful wedding march played by Mrs. Alex Wagner, accompanied by her son, Owen, with a violin.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of white canton crepe, draped with white shadow lace. She wore a veil, held in place by a string of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Her bridesmaids were her cousins, Miss Tillie Pawloski of Lemont, and Miss Lillian Yunker, sister of the groom. Miss Pawloski was attired in blue canton crepe, and Miss Yunker in coral canton crepe. They carried bouquets of pink roses and carnations.

Little Edith Dewese, cousin of the groom, acted as flower girl. She was dressed in plaited georgette crepe, trimmed with lace.

The groom was attended by his brother, George, and Edward Pawloski, cousin of the bride. Mr. Milton Uthe was the chauffeur for the bridal party.

After the ceremony, they went to the groom's home, where a bounteous supper was served to fifty guests. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink and white. Their many friends wish them a happy life.

Sunday the bridal party motored to Lemont to have their pictures taken.

Old Tinley Park Resident Dies

Mr. Freberg, Sr., father of E. Freberg of Tinley Park, died at the home of his son, with whom he had lived for over thirty years, Monday noon, following a brief illness. He had lived in Tinley Park with his son and family for about twenty years. He was born in Sweden. He is survived by his son and grandchildren. Funeral services were held Thursday noon, Rev. A. Buddenhagen, of the Zion Lutheran church, officiating. Burial in Tinley Park cemetery. The deceased was 68 years old. He was a kindly old gentleman, and was much esteemed by the community.

File Income Tax Returns Early

The Collector of Internal Revenue is asking all loyal citizens to file their income tax returns early this year, in order to permit the deputized collectors to lend every possible aid to the taxpayers. Several of the largest industries in the First District have already planned to co-operate in the early filing movement.

This week the mailing of forms 1040-A was completed to thousands of taxpayers of record, residing in the First District of Illinois, comprising the thirty northern counties of the State. The form referred to is for the use of those whose incomes are less than $5,000.

Single persons who had a net income last year of $1,000 or more, or gross income of $5,000 or more, are required to file. Married couples who had a net income of $2,000 or more, or gross income of $5,000 or more, must file.

The exemptions provided for by the revenue act of 1921 are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 for married persons whose net income was $5,000 or more.

The exemptions for dependents—a person who received his chief support from the taxpayer, and who is under 18 years of age, or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective—is $400.

The forms number 1040, for incomes over $5,000, are not ready for distribution, but will be on January 27th, 1923.

Will Stock Hickory Creek With Fish

Hickory creek, flowing south of Mokena, has not been yielding any good fishing for years, and many of our local fishermen have had to go to distant lakes and rivers for their fishing. Justice John F. Schultz and Mayor Geo. J. Hacker have been thinking that it would be a good idea if the creek were stocked with fish. After discussing the matter, Justice Schultz took the matter up with the Illinois Game and Fish Commission, and they sent him a questionnaire to fill out, which he did, and has returned. Pike and perch have been ordered, and when the fish arrive from the State hatcheries, they will be placed in the creek. The fish are to be sent in glass jars. After the creek has been stocked, it is said there ought to be good fishing within another year or two. In order to prevent seining, the State has been asked to appoint a local fish warden.

This is one of the best strokes of enterprise which has taken place here for years, as it is for the benefit of the whole community, and the men back of the movement are to be complimented.

Mokena Card Club Gives Oyster Feed

The card club composed of the business men of the town, which holds nightly sessions in the barber shop, had a real treat Saturday night, when the members got together and held an oyster supper at Hatch hall. A real big time is reported.

Tinley Woman Injured by Fall

Monday came to be a blue Monday for Mrs. Henry Neiman, when she fell downstairs into the cellar. She was injured while doing the family washing. She was injured about the head, suffering several deep cuts and scratches. She is getting along nicely.

Mokena Church Nearing Completion

Work on the new St. John Evangelical church at Mokena is nearing completion. The art glass windows have been installed, the heating system connected up, also the wiring, and the painters are now engaged putting on the finishing touches. The new edifice is a beauty, and one the community can well be proud of.

Frankfort Installs Siren Fire Whistle

The village of Frankfort has just installed a fire siren whistle. The apparatus is operated by motor, and is attached to the water tower. Several switches will be distributed thruout the village, from where a fire alarm can be turned in. The local telephone office is to have one of these switches, it is understood, and in case of fire, central can be called, and she will throw on the alarm. The siren is very shrill, and can be heard for miles at night. The past few days the siren has been turned on at noon to test it out. The old bell at the village hall was found to be impractical, as it could not be heard all over town, and in case a train was in the village, it could not be heard at all, as the engine bells and the old fire bell sound so much alike. Frankfort feels safe now, knowing they have a means of spreading an alarm in emergency in case of fire or otherwise.

A New Pastor

Word has been received that a little 7-pound son arrived at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Theodore Miner, at Evanston, on January 17th. Rev. Miner was formerly pastor of the Frankfort M. E. church.

The deputy collectors in the district will publish at an early date the towns they will be on certain dates for the purpose of assisting the taxpayers with their returns.

"The Home-Like Church."

Sunday School, 9:30.

"A class for every age."

Teachers and classes working according to the C. D. Q. plan, a Modern Miracle in Bible studies.

German preaching service at 10:30. Theme: "We Beheld His Glory."

English services in the evening at 7:30. Theme: "Jesus Only." A sermon that will silence the infidel, revive the Christian, reassure the doubter, and win the wanderer.

The choir will render a special selection at both morning and evening service.

Please be there. Bring a friend. If you are not tied to another congregation, come Sunday and worship with us.

NOTES EVANGELICAL

Never before did we take up a new year's work under more favorable circumstances or with more telling results of our efforts. Total receipts within the church for the various branches of its extensive work for 1922 were $5,487.00. Contributions towards the new church by the members and friends of St. John's amounted to $27,000.

For a church of our size, those are telling figures. 182 pounds of useful charity gifts were forwarded in 13 packages to children-homes in Germany and Austria, and a special Christmas offering of $36.00 for the war-suffering children of Central Europe.

The officers of the congregation for the ensuing year are: Wm. Schmuhl, president; Wm. Junker vice-president; Wm. Keuch, financial secretary; Wm. Niethammer, treasurer; Milton Krapp, treasurer charity fund; Geo. Lauffer, superintendent of cemetery.

The dedication of "St. John's" new church will take place in the near future. It will require almost another month to get things in spick and span order. It was the wish of the building committee to enter the new edifice before the Lenten season, but certain delays have frustrated the plan. We may not throw the portals open until after Easter. We really prefer to dedicate after the Lenten season is over. Better weather will only favor us, and by giving all workmen ample time, we hope to be assured of better work.

Having waited this long, we can wait a month or two longer, especially since we have our old church yet, where we can serve God every Sunday. May the good Lord grant us His divine blessing.

Wm. KRUEH, Pastor.

Franklin Anniversary Celebrated

In many cities of the United States, and also in England and France, there were elaborate celebrations on Wednesday, January 17, the 200th anniversary of the birth of Franklin. The illustration shows the statue of Franklin in Philadelphia, marking the spot where he stood when he flew a kite in a thunderstorm to discover secrets of electricity; and his original electrical machine, now in the Franklin institute in Philadelphia.

No More Fire Horses in Chicago

When engine company No. 11 on East Austin avenue, Chicago, the last horse-drawn fire engine in the city of Chicago finished its work the other day, the horses were turned over to the mounted police department and the engine was sold for scrap. Chicago thus became the first large city in the world to be equipped altogether with motor-propelled fire apparatus. The last horse-drawn engine is here seen starting on its final trip.

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WORK

E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marion, Ind.—"I was all run-down, nervous and bent over. I could hardly drag around, let alone do my work. I read some letters in the papers telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and I thought I would try it. Then a man told my husband about his wife and what good it had done her and wanted him to have me try it. I took one bottle and could see what it did for me in a week's time, and when I had taken three bottles I had gained both in strength and weight and was doing my own work. I took it before my last baby was born and it helped me so much. I sure am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who suffers from female ailments, for I know by experience what it can do. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, also the Liver Pills, too, and think them fine."—Mrs. Wm. Eldridge, 620 E. Grant Street, Marion, Indiana.

RADIO

PRESERVING TONE IN LOUD SPEAKER

How This Can Be Done and the Maximum Amount of Amplification Obtained.

The loud speaker is the ultimate aim of every radio novice, as with one of these instruments greater range of the received signals is obtained and the necessity of wearing the head phones is eliminated. The loud speaker also permits a greater number of people to hear the concert, as with head phones the number hearing the concert is limited to the supply of head phones, while with the amplification the number of people hearing the concert is limited to the range of the device.

There are several problems involved in obtaining the maximum amount of amplification, and yet at the same time preserving the original tone so that it will retain its pleasing qualities.

Most of these problems are involved in the maintenance of the quality of the received tone, as it is a comparatively simple matter to amplify the received signal sufficiently.

In order to eliminate or minimize loud speaker distortion, it is necessary to know the causes involved. The source of the trouble may be in the amplifier, in the loud speaker itself, or in both.

Amplifier distortion may be caused by unequal voltage transformations in the coupling transformer at different radio frequencies, by the operation of the amplifier tube at the wrong point of its characteristic and by overloading the tube to the point of saturation.

For good amplification of telephone signals, the inter-stage transformer should be capable of giving a uniform transfer of voltage from about 200 to 3,000 cycles per second. A good many transformers now in use do not do this, and their operation is one of the principal causes for unsatisfactory signals. For any particular plate voltage applied to the amplifier tube there is a corresponding value of negative grid voltage which should be applied in order to operate upon a straight portion of the characteristic curve and thus secure uniform amplification.

For connecting to the loud speaker, especially when using a power tube for the last stage, it is preferable to use an intermediate transformer with the proper constants, instead of placing the loud speaker directly in the tube plate circuit. This keeps winding and prevents the polarizing effect that it would have upon the diaphragm.

A two-stage amplifier will generally give enough intensity to operate a loud speaker in an ordinary living room, while the loud speaker mechanism itself may be of the head telephone type with a suitable horn. Some receivers operate very well at moderate intensities, but when very strong signals are applied to them they vibrate so violently that the diaphragms hit the pole pieces and produce harsh sounds instead of good reproduction of the original signals. To handle the proper amount of energy, therefore, the construction must be such that reasonably strong vibrations will not force the diaphragm to its limit of travel. The material and shape of the diaphragm are also important in determining the resultant tone qualities, since whatever natural periods of vibration it may have will bring out certain tones in greater proportion than they should be to the remaining tones of a musical selection.

The size, shape and material of the horn are likewise important factors in the final result. The high natural period of a small horn will tend to accentuate the higher tones to the exclusion of the lower ones. The material from which the horn is made should be some substance which will not vibrate and produce rattling sounds.

Thus we see that in order to produce a combination of amplifier and loud speaker which will give pleasing results, it is necessary to choose the various parts with care and assemble them so that they will give a true reproduction of the original signals.

Test Buzzer for Crystal Detector Set.

Those who have crystal detectors when asking the usual question, "How can I best improve my set?" are usually immediately told to get a vacuum tube detector outfit. This is out of the question for many of the crystal set owners, since a six-volt battery costs in the neighborhood of $20 and with the $5 V. T. and other accessories the price of the unassembled parts comes to at least $30.

In order to get the best possible "point" on crystal it is absolutely necessary to use a test buzzer.

Any buzzer or bell which depends on battery current for operation will do, although the higher-pitched buzzers sold for radio work give a much better and even tone. The dry cells, a little wire and a push button or switch for starting and stopping the buzzer are the other things necessary.

In order that the buzzer may be heard only in the head set it is necessary that it be muffled in some way. This can be done by locating it in the next room or basement, or by wrapping it in a cloth and placing it in a box. Run the two wires to the buzzer from the push button located on the table, connect the two dry cells in series with one side of the line, and the test buzzer is ready for a trial.

To adjust the detector close the contact through the push button or switch. This will start the crystal. Now try various spots on the crystal with the end of the "cat whisker" or wire spring until the buzzer can be heard in the phone. If the buzzer cannot be heard at all after a minute search, it may be necessary to connect one side of the buzzer line to the ground lead on the set. Do not be satisfied with just hearing the buzzer. There are many poor spots on a crystal, but only a few really good ones, and it is surprising how sensitive a crystal can be when the very best adjustment is made.

A good piece of galena is our preference. This crystal requires a very fine clean point with light pressure. Therefore, galena, if it is to be used, a very light spring contact wire is necessary. The end of the wire which touches the crystal can be cut with a knife or pliers at an angle so that the point is sharp.

The big advantage of the test buzzer over the outside signals is that it is always available and is constant in strength.

STATIC HEAVY IN SAHARA

Especially Violent During Storms, Due to Friction Between Grains of Sand.

American radio fans who complain occasionally at noisy static should thank their stars that they are not in the Sahara desert. Static there is very violent during sandstorms, the friction of the grains of sand one upon another generating strong currents, says Raoul Moha of Algiers, writing in the Wireless Age.

In addition to the mathematical proof, one also has visible evidence of this "sand" electricity, and sometimes also very painful physical proof, when the simoon blows. The antenna, most efficient collector of electricity, becomes highly charged under high winds, and unless one takes care to ground it and disconnect the receiving instruments, the latter are quickly put out of service by the repeated discharge of strong sparks. These jump between the plates of the condensers, from binding post to binding post, from knob to knob, and indeed across any and all points offering the slightest path for the current. The operator, if he stays at his post and is not insulated from the ground, will receive strong shocks. The effect of the static discharges from the antenna, if not physiologically dangerous or grave, is none the less very painful.

USES NEW KIND OF WAVE

A radio set using a new kind of magnetic wave was recently exhibited in the East. Although but 15 inches square and weighing but seven pounds, it is claimed that it will send sound through solid steel or concrete and can be successfully used by entombed miners or from the inside of a bank vault. No aerial or ground is required and the set can be used for communication either with a single station or between the rooms of a house.

Norway's Big Station.

The radio station on the Rundeman, a mountain towering 2,500 feet above the city of Bergen, Norway, is being modernized and equipped with more power apparatus as well as with radio telephone apparatus, the Scientific American reports. As the new equipment has a radius of 3,000 kilometers, it is believed that direct communication with American stations will be possible. Radio telephones with a 600-mile radius are also to be installed and connected with England and continental Europe establishments.

How to Tune for Music.

If you hear the carrier wave before you hear the music or talking, it is because you have the filament current of your tubes burning brightly, and your set oscillating—the consequence being that you are heterodyning on the carrier wave. This is one of the ways of searching for a broadcasting station, because once you get his carrier wave you can then adjust to the music and reduce the filament current after you have got a good adjustment.

Mounbatten a Radio Fan.

Lord Louis Mounbatten, who sprang to fame with his comment regarding "the bird," which the jolly old baseball bugs gave Former Judge Landis in New York, expects to specialize as a lieutenant in the British navy in naval radio, he told reporters while touring America on his honeymoon with his bride, the former Miss Edwina Ashley.

Twelve Miles of Antennae.

The government's most powerful radio station, at Annapolis, has 12 miles of antennae wire upon its six 600-foot towers. To safeguard the wires from accumulated sleet or ice, the weight of which might be as much as seven tons at times when such danger threatens, the wires are electrically heated.

Chile to Control Broadcasting.

In Chile legislation is about to be enacted putting radio on a basis similar to its control in the United States, with broadcasting stations maintained by public enterprise.

Radio Dances on Ships.

Radio is furnishing dance music for excursion boats.

Expenditure of $2,500,000 for construction of a national archives building at Washington has been authorized by the senate.

Members of congress at Washington are being showered with petitions from all parts of the country for action by this government toward the relief of the hunger-stricken populations of Germany and Austria.

Ten raids by prohibition agents and police at Washington netted about 400 gallons of assorted liquors and eight arrests. The choicest assortment of liquors was uncovered in a house in the fashionable section.

The federal government at Washington reports an increase of 65 per cent in the number of arrests for violation of federal drug laws in the second half of 1922 over the second half of 1921.

If the influenza epidemic now raging in the South and East increases, the limit will be removed from the number of liquor prescriptions permitted physicians, prohibition officials at Washington announce.

The house rivers and harbors bloc rode over party leaders and increased the "pork barrel" appropriation by $20,000,000.

The senate at Washington passed the Capper bill providing for co-operative credit associations and other measures for long-time loans to farmers. This completes half of the farm credits program.

Interstate commerce commission inspectors at Washington placed responsibility for the wreck on the Southern Pacific at Humble, Tex., December 13, in which 22 persons were killed and 11 hurt, upon J. H. Smith, engine watchman.

The British debt commission left Washington for London to report to their home government. No agreement was reached, but members of both sides hope for compromise.

The senate at Washington adopted the resolution of Senator Brookhart (Rep., Ia.), asking the treasury whether any law had been violated by recent declarations of large stock dividends by many corporations.

Personal

Eveline Booth, a colored woman of Oglethorpe county, Georgia, is dead at the age of one hundred and twenty-five years, nine months and eleven days, according to Dr. William A. Davis of Atlanta.

Otto Tietz, the greatest merchant in Germany, is dead in Zurich, aged sixty-four. He served his apprenticeship with Marshall Field's store in Chicago.

Wallace Reid, motion picture star, died in a Los Angeles sanitarium in his fight against the drug habit.

Mrs. Mary A. Sabins died at her home at Lakeville, Mass., in her one hundred and sixteenth year. She was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, July 12, 1807, and came to America when twelve years old.

A Manila dispatch says Admiral Stark's fleet of anti-Bolshevik refugees, who fled when the Soviets captured Vladivostok, has reached Lingayen gulf, in Pangasinan province. General Wood has directed that they be cared for until they can leave for another port.

Union officials at Pittsburgh, Pa., adjusted their differences with the Pennsylvania Coal company and the Hillsdale Coal and Iron company, and rescinded their order for a strike.

An award of the distinguished service medal has been made to Robert E. Tod, commissioner of immigration at Ellis island, N. Y., for services during the war. He was a lieutenant commander in the navy.

Eleven Williamson county farmers and one union miner-farmer at Marion, Ill., acquitted the first five men to be tried for murder, as a result of the Herrin massacre, in which 21 nonunion miners and mine guards were shot and hacked to death in the riots of June 22.

Fire destroyed a steam trawler, believed to be a part of the liquor fleet which has been doing business off the coast near Highlands, N. J. Another steamer left the fleet and rescued the crew.

Eight persons perished in a fire in a five-story brick tenement house at Lawrence, Mass.

Alexander Howat, former president of the Kansas miners, and five other former officials were released by Judge Woolley at Pittsburgh, Kan., after serving 236 days of a year's sentence for contempt.

Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal church directed the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant of New York to disavow his denial of Jesus Christ as God and Savior or to resign his ministry.

Carey Calhoun of Monroe, a witness in the open K. K. hearing, on a plantation between Bastrop and Monroe, shot and fatally wounded John P. Parker, Jr., formerly sheriff of Ouachita parish.

Ambassador Harvey returned to New York from Washington, where he has been a guest at the White House. He sailed on the America Saturday for his London post.

Monsignor Ernesto F. Hippl, apostolic delegate to Mexico, whom President Obregon expelled, reached Laredo, Tex. He denied the Obregon charge that he interfered in politics.

The late Senator Boise Penrose, whose estate was believed to be worth millions, left only $601,341.82, according to an appraisal entered in the Orphans' court at Philadelphia. The estate goes to three brothers.

Huddled together in a clothes press, where they had sought refuge from fire, five children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kokalis were found to have died of suffocation at Binghamton, N. Y.

Gifford Pinchot, new governor, began transacting public business at Harrisburg, Pa., in full view. Working at a desk in the large gubernatorial reception room, he received all visitors in order.

A Baltimore dispatch says a mild form of influenza epidemic is in Maryland. During the first 18 days of January 564 cases were reported. During January, 1922, there were 143 cases. There are nearly 200 cases at the Naval academy alone.

R. E. Olds, Lansing, Mich., automobile manufacturer, has arranged to give cash and land holdings in Florida in return for the new Bellerive hotel in Kansas City, Mo., valued at $2,500,000.

Fire which swept through the fourth floor of the warehouse of Barker Bros., furniture dealers at Los Angeles, did damage estimated by the owners at $1,000,000. The origin of the fire has not been learned.

The internal revenue collector at New York received word from Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair that the government will bottle all bulk liquors now held in bond and will guarantee them as to quality.

Mrs. Gross Praises Tanlac for Overcoming Stomach Trouble
—Says Results Are Priceless.

"Before I took Tanlac I only weighed ninety-four pounds and scarcely had strength to sweep the floor; but now I weigh one hundred and thirty-two and am as healthy and happy as can be." This remarkable statement was made, recently, by Mrs. Mabel Gross, 1137 Aldrich St., N., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For nearly two years I had been in a seriously weakened condition and suffered nearly all the time from headache and backache. My nerves were beyond my control and I was terribly dizzy. I couldn't half sleep and my stomach was so out of order that even the sight of food nauseated me.

"The benefits I have received from Tanlac are priceless. I am now a perfectly well woman and my friends often speak of how healthy I look. Health is worth everything, and that is what Tanlac has meant to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Addressing the House.

It may be believed that Mr. Scrymgeour has made a new record by addressing the house as "Friends," though there have been some famous departures from the strict rule of "Mr. Speaker, sir." Pitt once addressed the speaker as "My dear sir," to the scandal of the precincts. Macaulay was very indignant with a new member of opposite views who was guilty of "Ladies and Gentlemen," and one has heard a tale of a member who addressed the house as "Gentlemen," and was sternly called to order.—London Daily Chronicle.

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

Goethe, the Great German Poet, Visits Saarbrücken Forest and Discovers the Philosopher of Coal

(Told in Eight Episodes)
By JOHN RAYMOND

No. III

THE PHILOSOPHER OF COAL

In 1771, there lived in the forest near Saarbrücken, in Germany, a chemist named Stahl. He was an eccentric old man who had an idea, far ahead of his time, that many things beside coke could be obtained in the combustion of bituminous coal.

Stahl had constructed a number of ovens over a long time and treated coal so that it produced oil, pitch, coke and soot. That was quite a forward step and although he lived in the depths of a forest the great minds of Europe heard of his work. In fact, Goethe, himself made a pilgrimage to the ovens of the far-seeing chemist and in his autobiography wrote a striking comment on his visit to the Saarbrücken forest.

"Ready and glad to pour his comments into a human ear, the lean, greynight, little man, with a shoe on one foot and a slipper on the other, and with stockings hanging down and repeatedly pulled up in vain, dragged himself up the mountain to where the pitch house stood which he had built himself and saw with grief now falling into ruins. There was found a connected row of ovens in which coal was to be freed from sulphur and great quantities of intermediates were made for use in the iron works, but at the same time they wished also to recover the oil and pitch, and indeed, did not want to lose the lamp black, so that all failed together on account of the many ends in view."

Goethe, who dubbed the chemist of Saarbrücken "Kohlenphilosoph" or the Philosopher of Coal, wrote his commentary less than a century and a half ago. What would be his comment today could he enter one of the great without dreaming of the immense value of the waste products of coal tar. In the Middle Ages it was manufactured for use in the arts and for domestic purposes. The earliest record of coking coal in a regular oven was in 1600, when a patent was granted in England to Sir William St. John for making coke in a bee hive type oven. Later patents were granted in England, Scotland and Germany, finally in 1817, we find Isaac Meason "making coke in the ground" in Fayette County, Pennsylvania.

That was the crude beginning of one of America's key industries, for from these bee hive ovens, wasteful as they were, grew the great modern plant that astonished the world during its war by their production of poisons, gases, high explosives, fertilizers and other vital necessities. In times of peace these plants produce dyes and the manufacture of other commodities. In times of war they are easily converted into strongholds of defense.

You will remember that it was an English boy who discovered the possibility of manufacturing dyes from coal tar but England let the great chance slip through her fingers and as a result she found herself in a bad way when war broke out in 1914. It was humiliating for the United States to be caught napping and to be compelled to beg Germany to sell us dyes to color our stamps and currency but England found herself in a far more serious situation. She had no dyes for her uniforms or flags, and no drugs for her wounded. She could not sell to the former German markets because she could not color her textiles. She could not send sufficient high explosives or gases to the front because she lacked the essential coal tar crude.

But England will not be caught napping again. She has placed an embargo on foreign dyes and is working more than with all her strength to develop her own chemical industry.

Stahl certainly was one of the pioneers, but it appears that the Chinese used coke as an article of commerce more than with all her strength to develop her own chemical industry.

ORLAND

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Orland State Bank brought out some interesting figures. This bank, which is a little over two years old, has made an excellent record. The last bank report showed a total of $189,000.00. The past year this bank did $80,000 more business than the previous year, and every effort is being made to make this year a still better one. It is hoped to go over the $200,000 mark this year. More new patrons are being added right along.

At the annual meeting a 5% dividend was declared, and $500 was placed in the surplus fund, bringing this fund up to $8500.00. The contingent fund was also increased by $600.

The following officers were re-elected; President, Wm. T. Beagley; vice-president, Louis P. Daniels; cashier, Geo. E. Gee; assistant cashier, Mrs. Hazel McGovern. The same board of directors was re-elected.

NEW LENOX

The New Lenox smallpox situation is greatly improved, and all of the cases except five have been let out of quarantine. Churches are open again, and a lecture was held at the local M. E. church Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fink attended the funeral of the former's mother, held at Frankfort, Friday.

Do You Know That—

A strong earthquake is sometimes, though not always, preceded by a few slight shocks, and it is invariably followed by numerous shocks of this character. The aftershocks sometimes continue for years. More than 3,000 aftershocks were registered by seismographs during the two years following the great Minn-Owari earthquake, in Japan, which occurred Oct. 28, 1891.

Origin of "Hustings."

Hustings was the name of an ancient court held in the city of London. In its present sense the word denotes the place where members of parliament were nominated before the ballot act of 1872 rejected the form of nominating openly. From this it has come to be applied to any election campaign platform.

Pig Club Work

Mr. Levi Matter of Wheatland township opened up his heart to the boys and girls last week, and offered to donate a pig, which will be sold in the Chester White Breeders' Association sale for the promoting of the Chester White Boys' and Girls' Pig Club work. Mr. Matter stated that he wanted to do his share in developing the Chester White breed of hogs in Will county, and that he was ready to donate this one sow pig to promote this work. Mr. Matter has named the sow pig that will be sold "Pig Club Lady." She was farrowed on the 20th of September, 1922, and at the present time will weigh around 100 pounds. Her sire is Aledo Marshall, by Avondale and Princess Expansion. Her dam is The Bride, by Johnson's Elephant and Blossom.

The Chester White breeders had a good pig club contest last year, and are laying plans for a still larger club this year. Lillian Miller, the only girl to feed and exhibit a pig, won first place in the contest.

A Five-Minute Sermon on Church Advertising

D ID you ever think of the church as a business proposition? Why should a church always be considered a subject for charity? How often have you heard men say: "I don't go to church very often, but when I do go they are always begging for money. That's the reason I don't go often."

It's a narrow point of view, of course, for a church needs money to run it, just the same as a business. But why shouldn't a church be run as a business and be independent and not dependent? It can be, but business methods must be adopted.

All successful businesses advertise. The greatest competitor of the church on Sundays—the movies—advertises liberally. You have attractions in your church. You have a story to tell. You have a minister who can preach with a punch. The "regulars" may know it, but it isn't the "regulars" you want to reach—it's the "irregulars" and the "neverwuzzers." That's where the church has got to grow. And you have got to go after them the same as the business house goes after business.

You know that every business man keeps track of his sales every week and every month and he compares them with a year ago. And if he isn't running ahead he wants to know why. Do the churches keep track of their attendance? They know what the subscriptions are, for that's vital; yet increased attendance would mean increased subscriptions.

The church should cease to be dependent. It should go after business. Ministers who have tried it have been well compensated. Supposing this advertisement should appear in this paper this week:

FIRST REFORMED CHURCH

This Sunday Evening at 7:45

THE REV. JOHN KNOX ALLEN, D. D.

will preach on "OUR TOWN"

Front Seats Free.

Rear Seats, Ten Cents Each.

You'll be surprised. Come out and hear a worth-while sermon. A special invitation to all. We would like to see YOU in church. Special music.

Don't you think it would help? Wouldn't it start some talk about the church? Wouldn't the people say, "Well, I guess the church people are waking up?" The cost of the advertisement would be small, but the results would be big.

Think it over. Why shouldn't our churches stand on their own feet and be run in a businesslike way? Why shouldn't the people be educated to the fact that it takes money to run a church, that it is not a charity organization and that people ARE EXPECTED to contribute to it.

What would this town be without churches? You would not live in it, for it wouldn't be a fit place to live in. You need the church. The church needs you and the church needs advertising.

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

The Stored-up Sunshine of Other Ages Is Handed Down as a Heritage to Modern Civilization

(Told in Eight Sketches)
By JOHN RAYMOND

No. VI

PREHISTORIC SUNSHINE

Coal may well be described as prehistoric sunshine. Ages before the dawn of our own era vast forests covered large portions of the earth's surface. In this ancient vegetation were stored up the treasures of nature and after the lapse of ages it became the heritage of civilization.

For centuries after it came into use coal was looked upon as valuable only as fuel. Later coke was obtained from it, then sulphur and lampblack, and finally gas for purposes of illumination. That seemed to be the limit of its possibilities a few years ago but today it would be difficult to enumerate all the articles of commerce extracted from its by-products.

Coal contains a little of everything that goes to make up trees but it would be a mistake to imagine that everything that comes out of coal tar is contained within it. While there are only about a dozen primary products extracted from coal tar, from these the chemist is able to develop hundreds of thousands of new substances. This is synthetic chemistry, or the process of building up intricate compounds step by step.

Raw material for the development of these coal tar by-products—war materials, fertilizers, colors, drugs and a host of other things—exists in abundance in this country, but we must be sufficiently interested in our future independence to save it. We can not go on indefinitely wasting billions of dollars' worth of this invaluable substance if in future years we hope to stand on an even footing with those nations that long have recognized its value. The development of these products and compounds goes back to the color industry. This is not a large business in itself but it certainly is a strategic one because American industries employing more than two million workers are producing approximately three billion dollars' worth of products every year are directly dependent upon dyes. Take, for instance, textiles, leather, paper and paint.

New wonders are constantly being discovered in coal tar. Recently a French scientist succeeded in producing several small but perfect diamonds and synthetic rubies have been on the market for some time. Instead of sending traders on perilous quests to the four corners of the world for needed things a man may now stay at home and trust to the chemists to produce every necessity and most of the luxuries. No longer need we be dependent upon the potash deposits of Germany if we make our own fertilizers. Far off rubber trees are not so important if we manufacture our own rubber in the laboratory.

Prigadier-General Amos A. Fries, Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A., in a recent paper said: "What a thrill it must have given the German himself when he realized the almost limitless power the control of the dye industry would give him when waging war. He felt that with that control he could win in a war against the whole world. And few indeed are they who know just how close Germany came to winning that war. The lesson which that bit of history teaches us is to make ourselves masters of the chemical industry in all its ramifications, resting secure in the knowledge that if we do so no power on earth can overcome us for lack of war materials."

MISS LULU BETT

By ZONA GALE

Copyright by D. Appleton & Company

"MY WEDDED WIFE"

SYNOPSIS.—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warbleton, Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at enmity, though apparently satisfied with her lot. Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, is secretly enamored of Deacon's elder daughter, Diana. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Unexpectedly, Ninian arrives. Thus he becomes acquainted with Lulu first and understands her position in the house. To Lulu, Ninian is a much-traveled man of the world, and even the slight interest which he takes in her is appreciated, because it is something new in her life. At an outing which the family takes, Ninian and Lulu become confidential. He expresses his disapproval of her treatment as a sort of dependent in the Deacon home. Diana and Bobby, in the course of "soft nothings," discuss the possibility of eloping and "surprising the whole school." Lulu has awakened to pleasant possibilities concerning Ninian's intentions toward herself.

IV
July.

When, on a warm evening a fortnight later, Lulu descended the stairs dressed for her incredible trip to the city, she wore the white waist which she had often thought they would "use" for her if she died. And really, the waist looked as if it had been planned for the purpose, and its wide, upstanding plaited lace at throat and wrist made her neck look thinner, her forearm sharp and veined. Her hair she had "crimped" and parted in the middle, puffed high—it was so that hair had been worn in Lulu's girlhood.

"Well!" said Ina, when she saw this coiffure, and frankly examined it, head well back, tongue meditatively teasing at her lower lip.

For travel Lulu was again wearing Ina's linen duster—the old one.

Ninian appeared, in a sack coat—and his diamond. His distinctly convex face, its thick, rosy flesh, thick mouth and cleft chin gave Lulu once more that bold sense of looking—not at him, for then she was shy and averted her eyes—but at his photograph at which she could gaze as much as she would. She looked up at him openly, fell in step beside him. Was he not taking her to the city? Ina and Dwight themselves were going because she, Lulu, had brought about this party.

"Act as good as you look, Lulu," Mrs. Bett called after them. She gave no instructions to Ina, who was married and able to shine in her conduct, it seemed.

Dwight was cross. On the way to the station he might have been heard to take it up again, whatever it was, and his Ina unmistakably said: "Well, now, don't keep it going all the way there"; and turned back to the others with some elaborate comment about the dust, thus cutting off her so-called lord from his legitimate retort. A mean advantage.

The city was two hours distant, and they were to spend the night. On the train, in the double seat, Ninian beside her among the bags, Lulu sat in the simple consciousness that the people all knew that she too had been chosen. A man and a woman were opposite, with their little boy between them. Lulu felt this woman's superiority of experience over her own, and smiled at her from a world of fellowship. But the woman lifted her eyebrows and stared and turned away, with slow and insolent winking.

Ninian had a boyish pride in his knowledge of places to eat in many cities—as if he were leading certain of the tribe to a deer-run in a strange wood. Ninian took his party to a downtown cafe, then popular among business and newspaper men. The place was below the sidewalk, was reached by a dozen marble steps, and the odor of its griddle-cakes took the air of the street. Ninian made a great show of selecting a table, changed once, called the waiter "my man" and rubbed soft hands on "What do you say? Shall it be lobster?" He ordered the dinner, instructing the waiter with painstaking gruffness.

"Not that they can touch your cooking here, Miss Lulu," he said, settling himself to wait, and crumbling a crust.

Dwight, expanding a bit in the aura of the food, observed that Lulu was a regular chef, that was what Lulu was. He still would not look at his wife, who now remarked:

"Sheff, Dwightie. Not cheff."

This was a mean advantage, which he pretended not to hear—another mean advantage.

"Ina," said Lulu, "your hat's just a little mite—no, over the other way."

At length, having noted the details of all the clothes in range, Ina's isolation palled upon her and she set herself, to take Ninian's attention. She therefore talked with him about himself.

"Curious you've never married, Nin," she said.

"Don't say it like that," he begged. "I might yet."

Ina laughed enjoyably. "Yes, you might!" she met this.

"She wants everybody to get married, but she wishes I hadn't," Dwight threw in with exceeding rancor.

They developed this theme exhaustively, Dwight usually speaking in the third person and always with his shoulder turned a bit from his wife. It was inconceivable, the gusto with which they proceeded. Ina had assumed for the purpose an air of casual, attentive to the scene about them. But gradually her cheeks began to burn.

"She'll cry," Lulu thought in alarm, and said at random: "Ina, that hat is so pretty—ever so much prettier than the old one." But Ina said frostily that she never saw anything the matter with the old one.

"Let us talk," said Ninian low, to Lulu. "Then they'll simmer down."

He went on, in an undertone, about nothing in particular. Lulu hardly heard what he said, it was so pleasant to have him talking to her in this confidential fashion; and she was pleasantly aware that his manner was open to misinterpretation.

In the nick of time the lobster was served.

Dinner and the play—the show, as Ninian called it. This show was "Peter Pan," chosen by Ninian because the seats cost the most of those at any theater. It was almost indecent to see how Dwight Herbert, the immortal soul, had warmed and melted at these contacts. By the time that all was over, and they were at the hotel for supper, such was his pleasurable excitement that he was once more playful, teasing, once more the irrepressible. But now his Ina was to be won back, made it evident that she was not one lightly to overlook, and a fine firmness sat upon the little doubling chin.

They discussed the play. Not one of them had understood the story.

"Why Not Say the Wedding Service?"
Asked Ninian.

The dog-kennel part—wasn't that the queerest thing? Nothing to do with the rest of the play.

"I was for the pirates. The one with the hook—he was my style," said Dwight.

"Well, there it is again," Ina cried. "They didn't belong to the real play, either."

"Oh, well," Ninian said, "they have to put in parts, I suppose, to catch everybody. Instead of a song and dance, they do that."

"And I didn't understand," said Ina, "why they all clapped when the principal character ran down front and said something to the audience that time. But they all did."

Ninian thought this might have been out of compliment. Ina wished that Monona might have seen, confessed that the last part was so pretty that she herself would not look; and into Ina's eyes came their loveliest light.

Lulu sat there, hearing the talk about the play. "Why couldn't I have said that?" she thought as the others spoke. All that they said seemed to her apropos, but she could think of nothing to add. The evening had been to her a haze of happiness, her mind hardly operative, her look moving from one to another. At last Ninian looked at her.

"Sure you liked it, Miss Lulu?"

"Oh, yes! I think they all took their parts real well."

It was not enough. She looked at them appealingly, knowing that she had not said enough.

"You could hear everything they said," she added. "It was—" she dwindled to silence.

Dwight Herbert savored his rarebit with a great show of long wrinkled dimples.

"Excellent sauces they make here—excellent," he said, with the frown of an epicure. "A tiny wee bit more Athabasca," he added, and they all laughed and told him that Athabasca was a lake, of course. Of course he meant tabasco, Ina said. Their entertainment and their talk was of this sort, for an hour.

"Well, now," said Dwight Herbert when it was finished, "somebody dance on the table."

"Dwightie!"

"Got to amuse ourselves somehow. Come, liven up. They'll begin to read the funeral service over us."

"Why not say the wedding service?" asked Ninian.

In the mention of wedlock there was always something stimulating to Dwight, something of overwhelming humor. He shouted a derisive endorsement of this proposal.

"I shouldn't object," said Ninian. "Should you, Miss Lulu?"

Lulu now burned the slow red of her torture. They were all looking at her. She made an anguished effort to defend herself.

"I don't know it," she said, "so I can't say it."

Ninian leaned toward her.

"I, Ninian, take thee, Lulu, to be my wedded wife," he pronounced. "That's the way it goes!"

"Lulu daren't say it!" cried Dwight. He laughed so loudly that those at the near tables turned. And, from the fastness of her wifehood and motherhood Ina laughed. Really, it was ridiculous to think of Lulu that way.

Ninian laughed, too. "Course she don't dare say it," he challenged.

From within Lulu, that strange Lulu, that other Lulu who sometimes fought her battles, suddenly spoke out:

"I, Lulu, take thee, Ninian, to be my wedded husband."

"You will?" Ninian cried.

"I will," she said, laughing tremulously, to prove that she, too, could join in, could be as merry as the rest.

"And I will. There, by Jove, now have we entertained you, or haven't we?" Ninian laughed and pounded his soft fist on the table.

"Oh, say, honestly!" Ina was shocked. "I don't think you ought to—holy things—what's the matter, Dwightie?"

Dwight Herbert Deacon's eyes were staring and his face was scarlet.

"Say, by George," he said, "a civil wedding is binding in this state."

"A civil wedding? Oh, well—" Ninian dismissed it.

"But I," said Dwight, "happen to be a minister."

They looked at one another foolishly. Dwight sprang up with the indeterminate idea of inquiring something of some one, circled about and returned. Ina had taken his chair and sat clasping Lulu's hand. Ninian continued to laugh.

"I never saw one done so offhand," said Dwight. "But what you've said is all you have to say according to law. And there don't have to be witnesses . . . say!" he said, and sat down again.

Above that shroud-like plaited lace, the veins of Lulu's throat showed dark as she swallowed, cleared her throat, swallowed again.

"Don't you let Dwight scare you," she besought Ninian.

"Scare me!" cried Ninian. "Why, I think it's a good job done, if you ask me."

Lulu's eyes flew to his face. As he laughed, he was looking at her, and now he nodded and shut and opened his eyes several times very fast. Their points of light flickered. With a pang of wonder which pierced her and left her shaken, Lulu looked. His eyes continued to meet her own. It was exactly like looking at his photograph. Dwight had recovered his authentic air.

"Oh, well," he said, "we can inquire at our leisure. If it is necessary, I should say we can have it set aside quietly up here in the city—no one'll be the wiser."

"Set aside nothing!" said Ninian. "I'd like to see it stand."

"Are you serious, Nin?"

"Sure I'm serious."

Ina jerked gently at her sister's arm.

"Lulu! You hear him? What you going to say to that?"

Lulu shook her head. "He isn't in earnest," she said.

"I am in earnest—hope to die," Ninian declared. He was on two legs, a chair and was slightly tilting, a that the effect of his earnestness was impaired. But he was obviously in earnest.

They were looking at Lulu again. And now she looked at Ninian, and there was something terrible in that look which tried to ask him, alone, about this thing.

Dwight exploded. "There was a fellow I know there in the theater," he cried. "I'll get him on the line. He could tell me if there's any way—" and was off.

"I don't know what to make of Lulu's letters. They are so—"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Sunday School Lesson

Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JANUARY 28

THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:19-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy.—1 Tim. 6:17.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Psalm 49:6-20; II Cor. 8:1-9; I Tim. 6:17-19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Story of a Rich Man and a Beggar.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Poor Rich Man and the Rich Poor Man.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Penalties of Selfishness.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Right Use of Wealth.

In this lesson we are afforded a peep into two worlds where we see disclosed extremes of character and conditions. No more graphic picture could be drawn showing the contrast of two lives. These lives were intended to be representative. The rich man descends from the highest pinnacle of worldly enjoyment to the depths of endless misery. The poor beggar ascends from utter wretchedness and misery to the loftiest heights of blessing.

I. Contrasted Lives (vv. 19-21).

1. The Rich Man (v. 19). He lived in a mansion secluded from the common people. He was clothed in costly raiment; his outer garments were of purple and his inner garments of fine linen. He fed upon the richest food that could be provided. His sin was to selfishly indulge his appetites without consideration for others.

2. The Beggar (vv. 20, 21). He was laid at the rich man's gate with the hope of getting at least the crumbs from his table. The dogs of the street were more kind to him than the rich man. Lazarus means "God is a help," indicating that a godly life shone through his poverty. We learn from these contrasted lives that worldly condition is no sure test of a man's state in the sight of God. Rich men are not all wicked or selfish, and not all poor men are godly.

II. Contrasted Deaths and Funerals (v. 22).

1. The Beggar. He was found dead and his body hurried off to a pauper's grave. No notice was taken of it by the world.

2. The Rich Man. He also died. His gold could not bribe the messenger of death. Doubtless a costly funeral was held, attended by those who moved in his class of society. Death is the common end to which all classes must come.

III. Contrasted Destinies (v. 23).

1. The Beggar. He was at once carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. The souls of believers are especially cared for at the hour of death.

2. The Rich Man. Though he had an elaborate funeral he lifted up his eyes in hell, being in torment. When the veil of futurity is lifted we see that the positions of these men are reversed. The poor man was in the company of just men made perfect, because of his godly life while on earth, and the rich man is stripped of his purple and fine linen and cast into hell with all wicked men, because while on earth he only lived for selfish ends.

IV. The Reality and Fixedness of Life Beyond the Grave (vv. 24-31).

1. The Cry for Mercy (v. 24). Dives, which is the Latin name for "rich man," was now willing to claim relationship to Abraham. He was keenly conscious, and the appetites which controlled him while on earth were still with him. Instead of a means of gratification they were now an instrument of torture. Part of the torment of hell will be the cravings of appetite and lust, with no means of their gratification.

2. Abraham's Reply (v. 25). This reply cast the matter back upon the man's memory. He said, "Son, remember." The lashings of a guilty conscience will be most real in hell.

3. Their Fixedness (v. 26). Human destinies are fixed by the choices during the life. When one passes out of this life he enters into an unchangeable state and condition.

4. God's Word and the All-Sufficient Light (vv. 27-31). Dives now requested that Lazarus go on an errand of mercy to his brethren. He regarded the testimony of a spirit of more value than the Word of God. Many today are more willing to trust the rappings of a ghost than the sure Word of God. Abraham declared that God's Word is sufficient—that those who reject Moses and the prophets would not repent though visited by one who had risen from the dead. The greatest miracles will not affect the hearts of men who reject the Bible.

Development.

Development seems to be the method by which God works, and development is change—change which, by no means, involves imperfection; and this for the reason that lays, which obtain in the realm of the finite, may, or may not, obtain in the realm of the infinite.—Rt. Rev. N. S. Thomas, D. D.

Man Lives His Beliefs.

A man lives his beliefs however much he may betray his creed.—Sir Henry Jones.

Ancient Mine Workings.

A discovery of considerable archaeological interest has been made 30 miles north of the Leeuport tin mines in the Transvaal, near the Bechuanaland border.

A prospector has unearthed what is apparently a portion of an ancient smelting plant and a quantity of slag, which is being submitted to expert examination.

Nearby were old workings and a substantial body of ore containing a whitish metal, thought to be platinum or molybdenum. Mining engineers have left for the scene of the discovery.

Important to Mothers.

"Well, want to marry my daughter, I suppose," snapped the grumpy old millionaire as he glowered at the young man before him. Then, adjusting his glasses, he added: "By the way, aren't you one of my daughter's former suitors?"

"N-no, sir," faltered the timid youth.

"Well, you are now," said the old grouch as he turned away. "Get out!"—Boston Transcript.

Another Infant Prodigy.

"And whose boy are you?" the visitor asked of little Robert.

"Mamma's boy and papa's boy," was the prompt answer.

"Well, well! That's fine!" the visitor commented. "But just how can you be both mamma's boy and papa's boy?"

But Robert had evidently thought along those lines himself. He came back promptly with:

"Why, that's easy; can't a wagon have two horses?"

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over Forty Years.

Appearances Sometimes Lie.

Geneva, three and one-half years old, has a baby brother seven months old and is, therefore, "wise" as to the articles required to provide for all the needs and comforts of an infant.

She was in a store the other day when a woman, a stranger to both Geneva and her aunt, entered. The newcomer was nicely dressed and carried a commodious leather handbag, closed at the top by a drawstring.

Walking up to the woman, Geneva asked: "Have you a baby?"

"No," said the surprised woman.

"Then," asked the little girl, "why have you this?" laying her hand on the bag that the woman carried.

Frequently love makes a man think more of the girl than he does of himself.

Self-admiration is apt to cause a man to stretch the truth.

Generosity is a rich man's privilege and a poor man's hope.

The man who lives by his wits is not always a high liver.

Nerves of Steel—

The successful man of today is clear-headed, self-reliant. His keen eye and steady hand result from abundant, self-controlled energy, and steady nerves.

Such a man can overcome difficulties because he is physically fit. Foolish habits of food and drink have no place in his scheme of things. When he finds that coffee disagrees he promptly changes to healthful POSTUM.

This pure cereal beverage is not only free from the health-disturbing drug element in coffee, but there's comfort and satisfaction in its delicious, full-bodied flavor.

You'll find Postum a factor for Health.

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

An Advantage Sometimes.

"I'm going to have a fine time at New Year's," said one lady to another. "Mr. Higgins is coming to our party, and he is totally color-blind, you know."

"Does his color-blindness add to your enjoyment?" asked her friend.

"Rather!" was the reply. "He thinks all the holly berries are mistletoe."

Learning From Experience.

Experience is not only the best of teachers, it is in reality the only teacher, for we must learn either from our own experience or from the experience of others.—Charles E. Carpenter.

Boiled Loon Recipe.

Uncle Augustus, the sage of the village, was engaged in conversation with one of the young hunters who was enjoying the good ducking.

The young hunter wanted to know something about a loon.

"Ye never see a loon?" asked Uncle Augustus in amazement.

"No," replied the young man. "I never did. Are they good to eat?"

"Yes, they're good to eat, if you know how to cook 'em. You see, you put the loon in a kettle of boiling water and set it on the stove. Then you drop a fatten on it, and when the fatten is done th' loon is ready ter eat."—Judge.

Endangers Fur Animals.

According to Dr. William T. Hornaday it takes 80 skins to make the average mink wrap, 200 for a squirrel coat and 280 for a black mole coat, 90 skins may go to the making of a striped skunk jacket, and 300 to a Siberian ermine wrap. Before many years, if the present rate of slaughter continues, many of our most interesting animals will be practically extinct; even now the trapper is forced rather afield, and skins once unmarketable are being used to supply the deficiency.—Scientific American.

Mill-Ends--What Are They?

Manufacturers and weavers of yard fabrics and knit goods comply to certain regulations in yardage, style and size of their products for export trade. All yard goods falling short of specified yardage or having slight imperfections in weaving, or hosiery, underwear, etc., that have slight flaws caused by irregular thread are laid aside and become known as "Mill Ends." They are identical in quality, style and design with the full piece or garment, but slight imperfection prevents the manufacturer from selling them at a regular profit. These slight imperfections in many cases would take an expert to discover them, and do not impair the service, style or quality of garment in any way. By contracting months ahead and taking over entire accumulations of mill or factory, we are able to make these startling prices on seasonable goods.
